The intentional and pre-mediated use of lethal force, by a State or organized armed group against a specific individual outside their physical custody. Targeted killings occur both within and outside of armed conflicts [1]. Under IHL, they are problematic as, oftentimes, those targeted are geographically far removed from hostilities, and/or not necessarily directly participating in hostilities [2] at the time they are targeted. In the context of the war on terror [3], targeted killings against suspected terrorists [4], including “unlawful combatants [5]”, have occurred regularly. Drones [6] are frequently relied on to undertake such killings.
